Alzheimer's Drug Discovery Foundation

The Drug Discovery for Neurodegeneration conference to be held in San Diego, CA, aims to advance drug discovery for neurodegenerative diseases by educating scientists on the process of translating basic research into novel therapies. The course is designed to give participants knowledge and relevant resources about this field of scientific investigation and address the associated challenges.

OBJECTIVES

- Train a cadre of interdisciplinary scientists in the principles of drug discovery for neurodegenerative disease
- Provide a platform to exchange ideas, knowledge and resources about drug discovery for neurodegenerative disease
- Stimulate pre-clinical research in the discovery and testing of novel compounds aimed at the prevention and treatment of neurodegenerative disease
- Build public-private partnerships that will accelerate drug discovery for neurodegenerative disease

TARGET AUDIENCE

- Senior and junior academic and industry scientists engaged in drug discovery research for neurodegenerative diseases and CNS
- Business development and licensing professionals
- Alliance management professionals
- Venture capitalists and other investors

SCHOLARSHIPS

The Alzheimer's Drug Discovery Foundation invites applications for the 2017 ADDF Young Investigator Scholarships. Thirty scholarships will be awarded (top five will receive hotel accommodations). Application deadline is December 2, 2016. Review details on the conference website.

Neurodegeneration Conference

February 12-14, 2017

San Diego, CA

Alzheimer's Drug Discovery Foundation

This didactic conference will educate scientists on the processes of translating basic research into novel therapies and will leave participants with a strong knowledge base and relevant resources to address the associated barriers and challenges in developing a drug. The programs will also highlight case studies of small molecule and biologics programs at different stages of development aimed at tackling challenging CNS targets relevant to neurodegenerative diseases.
